Lecturer – 3 year term appointment

The Ohio State University Department of Food Science and Technology seeks a lecturer – benefits eligible for a 3 year --12-month term appointment, renewable upon successful review. This position reports to the Department Chair, Food Science and Technology.

Develops and teaches undergraduate lecture courses, both on-line and in person. Responsible for the teaching of high enrollment on-line FST 2200 The Science of Food class (3 semesters); assists with advising and directing undergraduate students providing academic, co-curricular and career-relate resources for approximately 160 undergraduate students; serves as a resource person for undergraduate students; ensures current and relevant information regarding undergraduate programs are communicated; assists with development and coordination of recruitment policies, procedures, and materials; provides pre admission assistance to prospective students and their guests, works on college initiatives for recruitment and retention.

Interested applicants should send resume, cover letter and names of 3 references in one pdf to Julie Townsend.57@osu.edu. Once your information is received, you will be sent instructions on preparing and sending a sample YouTube teaching video. The video sample will either be on the microbiology of safe food handling, or physical or chemical food preservation. Screening of videos will begin upon arrival.

Posting dates – July 28, 2018 – August 11, 2018

Education and Experience

Master’s Degree Required in Food Science

Desired Ph.D. in Food Science or closely related field

Excellent communication and presentation skills and software fluency is required. Teaching experience at the university level is desired and ability to work collaboratively.

Desired start date is October 1, 2018

Salary – $57,000 – $63,000